December 13 Showcase – Greg Vickers

showcase (shō kās') n. 1. a glass-enclosed case for protecting things on display, as in a store or exhibition. 2. anything displaying something or someone to good advantage [the revue was a showcase for new talent].

. . . thanks to Webster's New World Dictionary, Third College Edition . . .

Sounds like we have the choice of seeing Reston's own Greg Vickers "displayed to good advantage," or stuffing him into a protective glassed-in enclosure.

Greg has been coming to the Folk Club regularly since September of 2003. This will be his second showcase this year, as he played January's, too.

He promises to perform a few of his "Greg songs" . . . you know, the ones that typically revolve around silly linguistic details he's so obsessed with. Or about people he finds irksome. Or about the overwhelming patheticness of modern American culture.

And he promises to revisit Silent Banjo, Holy Night, a song he wrote for last year's Folk Club holiday party. The song's preamble tells the story of the lost-in-history fourth magi (is the singular magus?), Cletus, who presented the infant Jesus with a banjo. This song takes a while, so Greg is glad to have the extra time available with the showcase format. Greg hopes to perform a few songs with his frequent music partner, Michelle Murray. And two guys who haven't played the folk club before: Les Hatley (lead guitar) and Doug Brouder (bass, mandolin and vocals). And he'll probably get some assistance from house percussionist, Ron Goad, if he can get Ron to promise to behave himself.

Any volunteers to construct a big glass case?

HAPPY HOLIDAY

The Year In Review

2005 is almost over, and it's time once again to look back at some of the fun we've had here at the Folk Club this past year. Those who have attended the monthly concerts have enjoyed music by some of the finest national and international performers around. Many thanks again to our President, Ray Kaminsky for booking such wonderful musicians for our club.

Our monthly showcases continue to bring us enjoyment and deeper insights into the talents and interests of the Folk Club members who entertain us during our regular weekly gatherings. Open mike nights draw new talent regularly, some of whom sign up for membership after they experience the congeniality and camaraderie we enjoy. Special thanks go out once again to Chuck Curcio for our home here at the Tortilla Factory. In honor of his support, and with his approval our newsletter now proudly sports the Tortilla Factory logo.

Here is a brief list of the acts we've enjoyed at the club this past year:

2005 saw the implementation of our new website, designed and maintained by Armen Karimian. Armen works as Office Manager and Tech Wizard at the Chamber of Commerce, along with Ellen Kaminsky. Armen goes to George Mason University, where he is studying Internet Technology and Business. He creates websites on the side, and is open to requests for such work if anyone is in need of a great-looking website. Our thanks to Armen for all his work on our great new Internet presence!

Thanks also to all the volunteers who help organize and operate the club, those who come in every week to setup, operate, and break down the equipment, and the performers who come in every week to entertain us. With your help we can all look forward to another year of enjoying music and laughter together in the friendliest (and craziest!) club in town.

Arlo Guthrie & Friends Take Train For Katrina

Arlo Guthrie & Friends will travel on Amtrak's City of New Orleans for twelve days in December, performing along the way to benefit the small venues in the train's namesake city that were damaged by Hurricane Katrina. (It was Guthrie's recording of Steve Goodman's song "City of New Orleans" that prompted Amtrak to restore the train's name.)

The traveling party will start at The Vic Theatre in Chicago on December 5 and arrive in New Orleans to perform at Tipitina's. Guthrie's son Abe Guthrie with his band Xavier and daughter Sarah Lee Guthrie and Johnny Irion will hold seven concerts along the route. Friends stepping aboard the southbound odyssey along the way will include Guy Davis, Ramsay Midwood, Kevn Kinney and Drivin' n' Cryin', John Flynn, Gordon Titcomb, and The Burns Sisters.

For more info, to donate goods, to volunteer or to purchase tickets, go to The Guthrie Foundation web site at <http://www.guthriefoundation.com>. The Guthrie Foundation was formed to help provide local cultures with the means to preserve traditional music, stories, medicine, dance, and spiritual practices in the face of an ever-encroaching globalization.

21st Annual WFMA Benefit Concert

Gordon Bok and Cindy Kallet have been added to the 21st Annual WFMA Benefit Concert, January 28, 2006, at the Rachel M. Schlesinger Concert Hall and Arts Center at Northern Virginia Community College, Alexandria Campus.

This year's program will focus on folk singers from New England and will include a tribute to the late Tom Rowe, featuring Schooner Fare, Denny Breaux and Tom's son, Dave Rowe. Other performers scheduled to appear include Noel Paul Stookey, Tom Rush, The Shaw Brothers, Bill Morrissey, The Nields, Gordon Bok, Cindy Kallet and Side by Side.

Volunteers are needed to help with many aspects of the Benefit Concert. To find out more, go online at <http://wfma.net>.
