January 14 Showcase – Steve Cutts

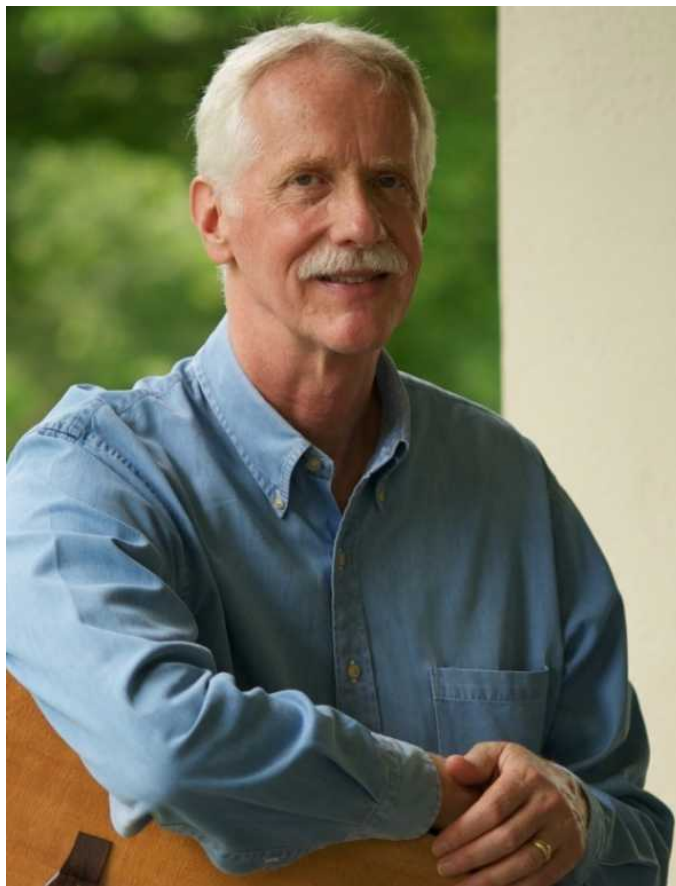

by Steve

Have you had the experience of rushing to get to the Folk Club on a Tuesday night only to find that the white board is awash in black magic marker and that all the slots for the evening have already been snapped up? I've found a solution (of sorts): get your name drawn for the next month's showcase. You may not have a spot out in the parking lot set aside for you or a meal provided free, but there's a luxurious 25 minutes reserved for you!

You all have been good over the years (reaching back to the Tortilla Factory era!) to listen patiently to my original compositions, and I'm looking forward to sharing (or sharing again) some of my newer songs, many written during my first year of retirement. Ah, the luxury of time!

All of these recent creations are included in a recording project that extended throughout this past fall. I've packaged the eight recordings as an on-line album titled "Going Down The Road Feeling Glad." You can easily locate this collection on my song-sharing website ThePrimeCutts.com. For this endeavor I had the good fortune to enlist these studio musicians: guitarist Jason Byrd; mandolin player Zan McLeod; drummer Eric Selby; keyboardist Bill Starks; saxophonist Bruce Swaim; and The Seldom Scene's dobro expert Fred Travers -- not to mention the Folk Club's own Ron Goad. As has been true over the last two decades, I was aided enormously by engineer and bassist Jim Robeson. In addition to the recordings we made in Jim's Gaithersburg studio, two songs in this new album were recorded on Nashville's Music Row with my long-time collaborator Rob Bartley, a recent migrant to Tennessee. Feel free to do some homework and have a listen to these new recordings that I've posted.

I am delighted to have the extra cushion of time set aside to settle in on the night of the 14th and play a little longer for you. With luck, the weather gods will smile favorably upon us in mid-January.

Proudly Presents

House of Hamill

"...showing off their own personality through great hooks, eclectic arrangements and tuneful melodies..." -Review, FolkNRock

Rose Baldino and Brian Buchanan met 10 years ago, late one night backstage at a theatre in rural Pennsylvania. The two bonded over a love of Irish fiddle tunes, Radiohead, and 4 AM whiskey. Their paths crossed a dozen times over the next decade, but it wasn't until the Folk Alliance 2014 conference in Kansas City that they finally became musical collaborators.

Both Baldino and Buchanan are accomplished traditional fiddle players and classical violinists, with over 25 years of writing and performance experience between them. Together, they write unusual new fiddle tunes and exciting, unpredictable original songs while breathing new life into traditional and contemporary songs. Both are confident and unique lead vocalists, and the blend of their two voices in harmony is hypnotic and irresistible.

Whether House of Hamill is playing songs from their debut album "Wide Awake" (2016) or stomping through a set of original jigs and reels from their follow-up "March Through Storms" (2018), their chemistry onstage is always engaging and often hilarious. In the summer of 2018, their quirky all-violin cover of "Sweet Child of Mine" went viral, amassing over 15 million views and more than 400,000 shares on Facebook in just a few weeks. Join us as we welcome House of Hamill for their first appearance at The Folk Club.
